

Stigmabase History for researchers

Stigmabase is a canadian not-for-profit technology initiative dedicated to informing and raising awareness on the damaging effects of social exclusion and stigma around the world. The marginalization of individuals or categories of individuals is a too common phenomenon. Millions of people are facing this problem around the world and many complex factors are involved.

Stigmabase lists every week — 52 weeks per year — 1080 stories about social exclusion and its causes throughout the world — in 16 languages. Stigmabase hopes to be a vehicle for change and combat social exclusion throughout the world.

The Stigmabase initiative is part of a universal approach and rejects any nationalist, hate and fundamentalist rethoric. Stigmabase believes in equality between the sexes, races, cultures, and equal opportunities for all.
